Eduardo Briceño is a leading keynote speaker, author, and educator specializing in learning culture and high-performance leadership. As co-founder and former CEO of Mindset Works, the first organization to promote growth mindset development based on the research of Carol Dweck, he helped global organizations adopt continuous improvement models.

His TED and TEDx talks, including 'The Power of Belief' and 'How to Get Better at the Things You Care About,' have reached millions, highlighting his ability to bridge psychology, educational science, and practical execution.

Eduardo is the author of 'The Performance Paradox: Turning the Power of Mindset into Action,' an award-winning book that provides actionable strategies for transforming intention into productive habits. With a background in economics and engineering from the University of Pennsylvania, an MBA and MA in Education from Stanford, and venture capital experience in Silicon Valley, he offers a unique blend of academic insight and business acumen.

Recognized as a Pahrara-Aspen Fellow and a member of both the Aspen Global Leadership Network and the Happiness Hall of Fame, Briceño continues to inspire corporate, educational, and public sector audiences with his frameworks for building resilient, innovative learning cultures.
