

VIOLY MCCAUSLAND

Most Influential Investment Banker in Latam.

Violy McCausland is a pioneer in business mergers, acquisitions, restructurings, capital raisings and project financings, making her the most influential investment banker in Latin America by far.

Over the course of her career, Violy McCausland has led more than $55 billion in successful business transactions including mergers, divestitures, acquisitions, spin-offs, public and private capital raisings, restructurings, privatizations and project financings.

She is behind many of the largest business deals that take place throughout Latin America, working closely with some of the region's most important business tycoons like Julio Mario Santodomingo, Lorenzo Zambrano and Gustavo Cisneros, among others.

She was highlighted as "a Latin American superstar" by Global Finance (1995) and named among the "top ten women in the region" by AmericaEconomía magazine. She worked with James Wolfensohn, former President of the World Bank, as a partner to develop his practice in Latin America.

The multi-faceted, undeniably talented and charismatic Violy McCausland is always in great demand as a speaker at leading conferences and organizations around the globe. She currently serves on the Investment Committee of the Museum of Modern Art in New York.
